The House of Commons

The House of Commons is the focal point of our parliamentary democracy. In the Chamber, built of Tyndall limestone and Canadian oak, the 264 elected representatives of the people of Canada consider and adopt legislation for the general welfare of the country, including laws concerning taxation and the granting of money for the many services provided by the Federal Government. The photograph of the Chamber shows the members in a formal sitting with nearly all of the members present. The Speaker presides over the House, sitting in the great chair which is a replica of the Speaker's chair in the House of Commons. The Mac — pictured on the cover — is the symbol of the House. It was destroyed by enemy bombing in 1941. Whenever the House is sitting, the Prime Minister, members of the Ministry and other members of the party in power sit to the immediate right of Mr. Speaker. Opposite the Prime Minister sits the Leader of Her Majesty's Loyal Opposition. At the end of the Chamber, away from and to the left of Mr. Speaker, sit the Leader and members of the New Democratic Party. Across the floor at the same end of the Chamber sit the Leader and members of the Social Credit Party. Not only must members attend sittings of the House but they also participate in the work of about twenty-five committees where detailed study is given to legislative proposals and to the operation and administration of governmental departments and corporations owned by the Government. Members must also find time to prepare speeches, attend to correspondence and present the views and representations of their constituents to Government Agencies and deal with the many requests for assistance of one kind or another from the thousands of people they represent in the House of Commons.

La Chambre des Communes

La Chambre des communes est le foyer de notre démocratie parlementaire. Dans son enceinte, ou le calcaire de Tyndall galles au chêne du Canada, les 264 représentants élus du peuple du Canada considèrent et adoptent les lois devant des impôts et affectant les crédits nécessaires aux nombreux services qu'offre le gouvernement fédéral. La photographie représente une séance régulière à laquelle assiste la presque totalité des députés. Le président dirige les séances de la Chambre; il occupe le fauteuil qui est une réplique de celui qu'un raid aérien a détruit en 1941, au bombardement de Westminster. La masse, reproduite et reporté sur le bureau du gouverneur général de la Chambre et le bureau du gouverneur général, chaque fois que celle-ci est en session. Suivant la tradition, le premier ministre, les membres du cabinet et les autres députés du parti au pouvoir occupent les fauteuils immédiatement à la droite du président. Face au premier ministre, siègent le chef de la majorité et les membres de son parti. A l'extrémité de la Chambre, à la gauche du président, siègent le chef et les députés du nouveau parti démocratique. A la même extrémité, mais à la droite du président, prennent place le chef et les députés du crédit social. Non seulement les députés doivent-ils assister aux travaux de la Chambre, mais ils participent également à l'étude de propositions de loi et examinent les propositions de loi ainsi que les activités et l'administration des départements du gouvernement et des sociétés de la Couronne. Les députés doivent également préparer des discours, s'occuper de leur correspondance, présenter les vues et les représentations des citoyens devant les Agences et traiter les nombreuses demandes de toutes sortes que leur soumettent les milliers de personnes qui les représentent à la Chambre des communes.
